

F - b - C - R - a

www.nbov.com on.nbov.com
 The best of both worlds—high-quality Saint Louis University distance education pursued from anywhere! Elect semesters, each class in Saint Louis University's Online Master of Arts in Education Leadership program blends "in person" synchronous classes via Zoom with convenient synchronous learning via Canvas, our electronic learning management system.

Whether your goal is to become a principal, teacher leader, leader in industry, or a non-profit organization, this program will help you to:

- Pursue excellence in leadership through an emphasis on innovative social
-
- Work with expert, experienced faculty dedicated to help in students connect theory to practice.
- Be eligible, upon completion of the program, to apply for Missouri Initial Principal Certification and take the next step in your career!

"We're applying the same high-quality experience you would expect from a great Saint Louis University to our flexible program to meet the needs of our students."
 - Doug Jank, P.D.

Partnership

- 32-credit hours of online instruction
- Approach to leadership theory, practice application, and research.
- Internship opportunities allow students to experience their leadership school leadership.
- Typical program completion in two years.
- Accelerate or slow your pace as needed.
- Online with both live synchronous and asynchronous instruction.
- Includes 3-day on-campus workshop experience in the summer.

- FREE online application
- Official transcripts
- Current resume
- Professional portfolio
- Online letter of recommendation

Admission

Fall Semester: Jun 15
 Spring Semester: November 1
 Summer Semester: April 1

314-773-2222

slu_d@slu.edu

"This program prepares students to become school principals and practice skills that you will find in your career in school districts, non-profit organizations, and other educational settings. Students can become champions of educational equity and thought leaders grounded in evidence-based practices on excellence in leadership."

- Kristin Hill, Ed.D.